Threshold and Headspace frontman Damian Wilson released his new solo album Built for Fighting on September 9th.

Built for Fighting, produced by Andrew Holdsworth, is Damian's first solo album in more than 10 years. Following suit with his previous solo releases, Built for Fighting is a singer-songwriter/melodic rock album containing 11 new original songs and a cover of Depeche Mode's Somebody.

The album was recorded over the last 12 months in studios in London (UK), Dublin (IE) and Tilburg (NL) with a group of talented musicians, including Bill Shanley (Ray Davies), Lee Pomeroy (Jeff Lynne's ELO, Take That), Adam Wakeman (Ozzy Osbourne, Black Sabbath) and Brian Willoughby (The Strawbs).

Built for Fighting was mixed and mastered in Sweden by the Fascination Street duo Jens Bogren and Tony Lindgren, who have worked with acts such as Opeth, Devin Townsend and Haken.

Built for Fighting is available as digipak CD, 12" Vinyl and as digital download on all major platforms, including a special 'Mastered For iTunes' version.
